Man Slain in Brawl

Lauren Lewis

Robert Blevins was killed Friday evening during a short altercation with an unidentified migrant farm worker.

“They were arguing, and then the little guy punches him once, and [Blevins’] entire head shattered. I’ve never seen anything like it”, said a witness.

Police say the forensic evidence indicates the likelihood of a weapon being used. “I’ve seen plenty of barroom brawls, and I’ve never seen a punch do anything similar to what happened”, stated Assistant Medical Examiner Steven Fry.

He went on to add that if you read this line, and tell the ST during sign in where your haven is and your sire’s name, you’ll get some extra experience points.

Unknown Aircraft lands in field

Evony Marquis

A 1961 Beechcraft twin-engine airplane crash landed late Friday night/early Saturday morning at the airport, however no pilot has been forthcoming. It is unknown where the plane arrived from, and no flight plan was filed with the FAA.

Metro Parks has been in charge of the property at Cornelia Fort since it closed.

Bounty at Farmer's Market Draws Large Crowds Eager for Unprecedented Spring Harvest

“I’ve never been a huge fan of vegetables, but now I can’t get enough”, says local Tom Long

Cinco de Caliber, the Latest Craze

Bo Dennis

Spurred by Toby Keith, the latest downtown gimmick goes by many names: Silver Bullet, Golden Bullet, Derringer, and the Sixshooter. All involve various types of liquor, but have one unusual ingredient in common: a bullet chaser.

Dr. Leon Vance, a physician at Vanderbilt Medical Center said, “While it is unlikely that a bullet would cause problems going through a digestive tract, and current literature recommends letting nature take its course, I worry about the potential for serious injury given the sheer numbers of people engaging in this activity.”

The Tennessee Health Department has looked into regulations but have declared that the bullet is classified as an “exotic garnish”, and perfectly legal to serve.

Plan for TN TSA Expansion Stalls

Fitzpatrick McCorrigan

The planned May expansion of citizen welfare checks announced by John S. Pistole, Administrator of the TSA, has been placed on hold. An inside source deemed the issue to be both problems with detector equipment malfunctioning, but recent events have painted a different picture.

Special agents from the TSA arrived in Nashville and promptly arrested dozens of local citizens and tourists walking the streets downtown. Citing charges that were redacted for national security reasons, the large number of arrests were universally dismissed.

Local TSA agent Todd Brooks was summoned to Washington to address a committee on the team’s actions.

An investigation into the disappearance of Reverend Bullsworth is ongoing, but his congregation is still going strong and continuing to help the homeless of Nashville.

Mexican drug cartels have moved into Nashville and are shutting down the local sources for various different hard drugs. As a result, use has gone down a great deal.

Religious groups have started to gather outside the Frist to protest the collection of pre-Islamic Middle Eastern Art that will go on display starting May 19th. The items have already arrived.

Toby Keith: is his fame as a bar legend going to last, or will it be a short term fad? Some are already looking for a new icon for the downtown bar scene.

Teens are drinking hand sanitizer to get high. Seriously, folks? Really? Why, in my time...

Farm worker junkies are trashing local businesses, and have beaten several locals unconscious.

The Frist is haunted by a mother and young child. Cleaning crews have spotted them several times now.

A powerful elder as arrived in Nashville and has an agenda.

Prince Bell of Franklin has most of her city sweeping the rural area around Nashville. None have yet stepped foot on the claimed lands, but several have fallen to a wolf-bloods.

"Vampire killer" deaths continue, but are being hidden by local vampires.

Carthians have set up a major telecommunications network in the AT&T building.

WAIT... WHAT?

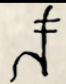

HOLY CRAP!!!

RUN!!!

Many kindred are hiding and lying low due to a massive influx of vampires of an extremely high blood potency.

Due to this, Kindred rumors are minimal.

RECENTLY...

Although no "arson", aka sudden flaming death, has occurred recently, that might be chalked up to the fact that the kindred of the city have functionally abandoned part of East Nashville.

A temporary Coterie of Invictus and Crone worked together to solve a major problem in the city. In a very unusual manner.

Other things are happening in the World of Darkness... secrets and alliances forming.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

New pins are in. I trimmed the character sheets – the packets should be good from here on out.

I intended this week to do a handful of internet things: open up the wiki and add a newspaper archive site for people. It'll be at the domain Chief-Gazette.com when it goes up. Alas, my plans were waylaid by a bunch of unexpected social stuff (I'm looking at you people!) I did get the mailing list up and running. Check the website for details.

I added XP to people who are wearing costumes and also to those who turned in a backstory.
