Christian Identity Suffers Loss

Charles Eppes

The night sky was illuminated with an orange glow over the city of White Bridge as the White Bridge Baptist Church caught fire, leading to the deaths of about 16 citizens from all over the greater Nashville area.

Seymour Sutton, a well renowned attorney new to the Nashville area, was found among the rubble of the destroyed building, and many people are asking questions as to how the fire could have started with so many in attendance at the night's Christian Identity gathering, where Sutton was speaking that night.

There have been unconfirmed reports that people were seen leaving the building shortly before the fire was visible from within the church, but the identities have not been brought forward nor have the reports been verified as valid.

"What happened here is a tragedy," said Reverend Barry Miller, the leader of the White Bridge Baptist Church. "The Fellowship is now without a home or place to worship, and many are distraught over the loss of not only their church home, but friends and family as well. The loss of the reformed Christian Identity will be a major blow to our congregation and our city."

The Sheriff's Department and Tennessee State Troopers are heading up the investigation into the building's destruction, and are actively looking for any information to help with the investigation.

Church Laid to Ruin

The White Bridge Baptist church lays in ruins after a catastrophic fire laid waste to the structure. There are multiple casualties, some from the fire and others who had been crushed by falling debris during the building's collapse.

Dragons Come to Nashville

On September 29th, the annual Cumberland River Dragon Boat Festival started up, with an interesting twist to normal year's events; instead of one day of races, the events would be a tournament of sorts spanning a week, with the final match taking place the night of October 6th.

This change of plans comes as a last minute decision due to a heightened level of interest in the race. Many of the sponsors and partners, including Dell, Bridgestone, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, have brought forward an additional reward for the winner of the race.

Due to this increased risk and reward, the Metropolitan Nashville Police Department has taken over security of the event, and has had a constant presence at riverside for the entire event.

Colors of Spring

Recent images of graffiti and defacement have begun to grow in style and color, even showing a keen increase in color as sunlight shines over surfaces covered in the designs.

The theme of the imagery, once very simple, black and white descriptions with hidden political meanings, has evolved into sweeping landscapes, filled with colors and creatures of all kinds. Even the politics behind the paintings seem to be disappearing behind the fantasy and color added to the bland art.

As the graffiti has become the focus of a new law enforcement task force, world-renowned artist Banksy spoke up with this to say. "Remember: crime against property is not real crime. People look at an oil painting and admire the use of brushstrokes to convey meaning. People look at a graffiti painting and admire the use of a drainpipe to gain access."

"The price is in the mashed pudding! Punch the pudding, getting a prize! Miss the pudding and the people dies!"

The pictures hold the truth, you just have to know where to look. And the truth keeps growing, and moving.

Some people weren't just seen exiting, but also entering the Christian Identity church shortly before and after the fire broke out. Why would someone want to enter a burning building anyway?

The police department seems to have a much improved morale, as the officers that had been let go have been replaced by new recruits, fresh from the Academy.

Reflections in the surface of the lake, the moon taking on a new face, before covered in light and the face becoming real. And then ... nothing. No signs, no reflections. Just darkness.

Despite their shut down, the Los Muertos still sound like they're up. And they're looking for something huge...

People are coming up missing, special people. There is literally no sign of these people, and some of the families don't even remember that loved one.

An offer was made, and now the Strider known as Zian has been poking around a bit more, talking about taking up "the mule" on the offer.

Animal corpses have disappeared now, no longer being blatantly left at the edge of the bawn.

Multiple, higher powered spirits seem to be misplacing or losing things: Cockroach is missing information, Rat is missing Cap'n Crunch, even Falcon is missing something, though He's being oddly silent and invisible about it.

Lunes are being oddly silent. Long gone are the ramblings of mad spirits, extensions of psychotic Luna herself.

The Lady of Perpetual Peace seems to have returned things to a more natural state at Radnor Lake. The foam-fungus is gone, the faceless creatures from the Tellurian no longer there. Things are now as they once were.

The second game in October, October 20th, is canceled due to some big event. Not sure what that's about. Lazy Storytellers, probably. I guess if you don't know, you can ask them.

If you do not know what a task card is, ask around or ask one the STs.
