Cubs Owner Gets Goat Head

Carole Ann Ford

Wednesday at 2:30pm Chicago local time, a goat's head was delivered for Chicago Cubs owner Tom Ricketts at his office in Wrigley Field. The head was dropped off at Gate K by the unidentified male driver of a van, reportedly not by a member of the United States Postal Service.

The Chicago Police were notified of the incident, and are investigating. The driver of the truck was recorded on surveillance video.

In 1945, when the Cubs last competed in Major League Baseball's World Series, Chicago restaurant owner Billy Sianis was ejected from Wrigley Field during the World Series after trying to bring a goat into the stadium. Following the incident, Sianis is alleged to have cursed the team, vowing they would never win the championship again. The incident has become part of Chicago Cubs' fan lore.

The day of the incident, the Chicago Cubs game versus the Milwaukee Brewers was postponed due to weather. The Cubs organization is also in negotiations with the city of Chicago over possible renovations to Wrigley Field.

Manhunt for Exit-In Terrorists Begins

Police are searching for the individual (police sketch inset) and any known accomplices who were involved in the Exit/In shooting and attempted bombing on Saturday night.

Terrorism strikes Nashville Music

The gunfire that broke out in the Exit/In on Saturday night was only part of the plan, says law enforcement.

"It appears that the gunman's intent was to fire into the crowd at the right of the stage, forcing them to flee toward the waiting explosive stacked against the west wall", said Lee Atwell, a spokesperson for the Metro Police Detective Department. "If it weren't for one large fan, we may have had one of the largest losses of life in recent memory."

An unknown hero, described as a "brute of a man" wearing a green Celtic tee shirt, pushed the crowd aside and extinguished the fuse.

A coordinated manhunt has begun to find the gunman, and the public are calling for an expansion of Wes-Intel's zone of protection.

Spring Biker Crowd in Violent Riot

Myrtle Beach, South Carolina has been host to dozens of motorcycle events, and this year's Spring Rumble Ride is the seventh in the annual series. Several hundred motorcycles and their riders descended upon this small southern town, expecting a beach party full of alcohol, bikinis and loud music. What happened Friday night was nothing like any participant or planner had envisioned.

"Everything was just fine, until about 9 o'clock", said Reba Jeffers. "I looked up, and there were[sic] a big wave coming in. There was bikes, people all over the beach. When it crashed, it pissed everybody off."

The resulting riot killed 58 people and injured 116 more. Police are researching for a gang who may have done most of the damage, as several bodies were found under gang graffiti painted in blood.

RECENTLY...

Last Game – 11pm, the ~~Sabbat~~ Belial Brood attacked. This being Easter Sunday, strange results occurred that have given several Kindred pause. Or problems.

Previously – Travels outside the city... you'll have to corner somebody who went to find out what happened.

Previously – The whole city banded together to put an end to Ruby and the kindred who were creating it. Strange visitors to Elysium and memory gaps followed.

Previously – Contact was made with the military contractors. They are certainly neither vampires nor normal humans. A early morning visit to the mayor seemed in order.

Previously – Okay, seriously... the city fought Ents and set the Cumberland ablaze. However, whoever it was that was making the vitae produce seems to be dead, along with the dogbeasts. What's next? Nukes for Neonates?

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Two ideas: Either a typical game tonight, or a personal, roleplaying heavy game involving the development of your internal characters. Up to the players, but there have been several significant events that have gone on recently that affect characters.
