Charity Auction Successful

Jamie Bamber

Janice Deryk, spokeswoman for The John Donelson Foundation, stated in a press release today that the charity auctions thrown to raise funds for their housing project have met with much success.

“We are pleased to announce that we have met our funding goals for this year and construction can begin in earnest. Any additional funds brought in by our auctions will be used as potential funding for future projects around Nashville.”

Recent bouts of inclement weather have delayed the construction project, but according to Ms. Deryk the project is still on schedule to complete before the end of the year.

The construction is scheduled to be completed by the end of 2013.

Library Board Member Goes Missing

Grace Park

Madeline Burns, Board member for the Nashville Public Library system, has been reported as missing. She was last seen two weeks ago at one of the John Donelson Foundation auctions. Eye witness report that shortly after the auction ended she was seen getting into a car with some of her fellow auction-goers and has not been seen since.

Ms. Burns has been an ardent supporter of expanding the Nashville Public Library system and helped coordinate the remodeling of the library after the fire.

Editorial: Season's Greetings

Jack Bean

This time of year people take to the indoors, spendin' time with family and friends. But what is family? Is family just a tie between blood, or is it somethin' else? Can't family be something more than just kin?

This time of year is about getting together with those that are important to you and getting to know them again. It's about forgiving wrongs and appreciating what you've got. Sometimes families fight. Sometimes a black sheep shows up unannounced and wants to make things right.

As we approach the Solstice we look to our past and our futures. Winter represents a time when old things die so that new life can be born. It's a time of change.

Happy Holidays!

Gang Continues to Plague City

Nickie Clyne

A wave of violence has struck the city. Drive by shootings and gang style assaults are continuing to plague the Antioch area. According to police reports there have been 3 more deaths and multiple individuals have been wounded.

According to police reports these attacks seemed to be coordinated and appear to have been targeted at a select few individuals, possibly a rival gang. There have also been reports of apparent retaliatory attacks.

The police are looking for any information that will lead to the arrest of these individuals and an end to the violence.

There's a new kind of moonshine hitting the streets. Stuff kicks like a mule and burns like hell going down.

That new housing project can't come soon enough. Maybe we'll be able to get all of the trash together on Dickerson Road?

I can't wait for the new library to open up! I've heard they have a children's room planned and will be offering after school programs for the local kids.

Something happened to the Arrows – they're all strapped and on alert.

I overheard an argument between Mynd Phreak and Chisholm. Something's about to happen and it might not be pretty.

The Free Council has been spending most of their time behind locked doors. They've been making themselves scarce when the other orders are in house

The Guardians seem to be on high alert. Some of the older members have been grumbling about the possibility of something happening soon that might strengthen the Abyss. I didn't think it could get stronger.
